

*PROPER ABBREVIATIONS FOR DENTAL JOURNALS
By BERNHARD WOLF WEINBERGER, D.D.S., New York, N. Y.

In the years gone by, those who wrote for dental journals and those who were interested in bibliographical work, feeling the necessity for abbreviating the titles of dental journals, devised many methods, irrespective of the accepted form and standard type. Recently further attempts have been made to classify our dental indices, and here again those interested have fallen into the same errors when they reached the abbreviations.

They are again confusing the issue. Unless something is adopted that general librarians can easily interpret, how can those unfamiliar with literature understand what certain letters signify? In the United States, being so far removed from the centers of culture, we unfortunately forget that there are other nations with their various languages that must be considered, and that they are a part of the general plan.

Fortunately there exists in the League of Nations an International Institute of Intellectual Cooperation. A sub-committee has prepared a national code of abbreviations for titles of periodicals, and almost every periodical can and should now be properly abbreviated.

In 1931 I presented the following plan (adopted by our dental periodicals) to the "Federation Dentaire Internationale Commission of Documentation" for their consideration. The subject, in turn, was referred to the League of Nations. It remains for them to approve of the abbreviation "dent" for dental, and then it can be universally used.

Before presenting the abbreviations of dental periodicals, it might be advisable first to set forth the general rules adopted by the above-mentioned organization, so that a definite basis for our abbreviations might be understood, and to include the accepted abbreviations so that in the future any further attempt in this direction might be carried out in the proper accepted manner.

THE INTERNATIONAL CODE OF ABBREVIATIONS FOR TITLES OF PERIODICALS
General Rules

1. As a general rule, titles of periodicals are not abbreviated beyond a point which allows of their easy identification. The order of the words is not varied.

Exception: Some of the most common generic names for periodicals (i.e., such words as Journal, Zeitschrift) are abbreviated to a greater degree than this principle permits. A list of these is appended.

II. Normally, the abridged form retains all words other than articles, conjunctions, prepositions and analogous locutions. These are generally omitted.

Exceptions: (a) When the title consists of only two nouns, (neither of which is a generic name) separated by an article, preposition, conjunction or a combination of these parts of speech, the latter are retained.

(b) The conjunction is retained between two compound nouns the last part of which is common to both.

Read at Dental Round Table at the 36th Annual Meeting of the Medical Library Association, Rochester, N. Y., June 17-19, 1935.

(c) In exceptionally long titles, in addition to articles, conjunctions and prepositions, some of the other less important words are omitted.

(When the conjunction is preserved "and" is abridged as "&"; "und" as "u"; and "och" as "o." The German definite article is abridged as "d" in all its cases.)

III. The normal method of shortening is by abbreviation, the letters omitted being replaced by a full stop.

E.g.: Medicine—Med.

But certain contracted forms are permitted. A list is appended.

IV. Nouns are spelt with a capital, adjectives with a small initial letter. For geographical adjectives either a small or a capital letter may be used as preferred.

V. No distinction is made between singular and plural.

Blatt, Blatter—Bl.

Bericht (e)—Ber.

VI. Cognate words in different languages are reduced to the same form when the orthography permits.

E.g.: Academie —

Academy — Acad.

Academie —

Accademia — Accad.

Akademie —

Akademi — Akad.

Science, Scienza, Scienza—Sci.

Societa, Society, Societe —

Sociedad, Sociedade — Soc.

Socistas, Societate —

VII. Titles transcribed in Roman characters are also abbreviated in accordance with the foregoing rules, but more sparingly.

Titles of periodicals in oriental languages are not abbreviated.

Special Rules

I. Only titles consisting of at least two words are abbreviated. When a title consists of only one non-compound word it is given in full.

So: Recht—Recht.

Avenir—Avenir.

II. In compound words each part is abbreviated as when it stands alone, the different elements of the word being connected by hyphens.

III. The place of publication is not given except in the following cases, when it is separated by a comma from the title itself.

(a) When the resultant abbreviation does not reveal the language which has been abbreviated.

(b) When the title is in a language other than that of the country in which the periodical is published.

(c) When two or more periodicals have the same abbreviated title.

IV. The first word of the title may be less abridged.

V. When the title of a review begins with the name of a person, the surname only is kept and the rest of the title is abridged according to the rules.
